

Jeffrey Segar, MD – Bio

Jeffrey Segar, MD, graduated from the University of Wisconsin-Madison School of Medicine in 1986. He completed a residency in pediatrics and fellowship in neonatal-perinatal medicine at the University of Iowa, where he joined the faculty in 1992. He is currently Professor of Pediatrics and Director, Division of Neonatology, a position he has held since January 2006. In addition to his clinical activities as a neonatologist, Dr. Segar's research interests have focused on developmental cardiovascular physiology and developmental programming of adult-onset diseases. He has had continuous funding from the NIH for his research programs for over 18 years, has published over 70 peer-reviewed manuscripts and contributed book chapters in textbooks on fetal physiology and pediatric hypertension. He assumed directorship of the Iowa Statewide Perinatal Care Program in 2011.
